Peter is widely recognized as one of the leading next generation private fund lawyers in the United States. His practice focuses on the sponsoring and management of private investment funds, investment management M&A and other aspects of private investing in alternative asset classes, with a focus on innovative, high-value private fund arrangements of size and import.

Peter has been named one of the “Top 30 under 40” in private equity by Private Funds Management in 2015 and 2017, a “Rising Star” by Law360 in 2016, a “Superstar Lawyer of Tomorrow” by Private Equity International in 2017, and as a leading investment funds lawyer by IFLR 1000 and Who’s Who Legal for each of 2019 to 2025. Peter has represented many of the world’s leading private equity firms, including Blackstone, BC Partners, Centerbridge, General Atlantic, Lexington Partners, Millennium Partners, Morgan Stanley, Silver Lake, and Stonepeak.

Peter is considered a pioneer for his work on innovative “funds of one” and separately managed accounts, having established the unique Blackstone Tactical Opportunities investment program for which Simpson Thacher was highly commended in the Financial Times’ U.S. Innovative Lawyers Report and which is generally regarded as the industry bellwether for customized fund arrangements, as well as for his work relating to GP “minority stake” arrangements. Peter also regularly advises private equity clients on a wide range of high-profile private equity fundraisings across all types of asset classes, internal economic and house/team arrangements, founder succession planning and other strategic initiatives and special projects.

Peter has been at the forefront of the GP-led structured secondaries market in recent years, having completed a number of the largest structured secondary PE transactions and dedicated fundraisings in recent years on behalf of Blackstone. During the COVID-19 economic crisis, Peter counseled a wide range of alternative investment funds with
