In Chambers Latin America 2021, he is described as “a fantastic lawyer... [with] a very good understanding of US and local law across the different jurisdiction of Latin America,” and as “one of the best we’ve ever worked with.” Chambers Latin America describes Todd as “an influential figure in the Latin American securities markets” and a practitioner with “considerable experience in the field to advise major corporate and private equity funds on high-stakes M&A transactions.” Todd’s practice is favorably reviewed by Latin Lawyer 250, which reports, “Crider’s reputation throughout the region is stellar.” He has also been named by Latin Business Chronicle as one of its Top 50 Legal Stars and by Latinvex to its top 100 (and top 50 international) lawyers in Latin America.

Todd is an active member of the New York City Bar Association, where he was Founding Chair and is currently Vice-Chair of the Committee for the Cyrus R. Vance Center of International Justice. He is Vice-Chair (and past Chair) of the Board of the Rainforest Foundation US and a past member of the Board of the Directors of the Council of the Americas. Most recently, Todd joined the Board of the Brazilian-American Chamber of Commerce. He has previously served as Co-Chair of the Firm’s Pro Bono Committee and on the board of other legal services organizations in New York. He has acted as legal advisor to the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights in the Awas Tingni case, a central precedent under international law relating to the rights of indigenous peoples. Todd also led in the development of the Pro Bono Declaration of the Americas, a declaration of the legal profession’s public service responsibilities signed by 500 law firms across South and North America. He has participated as an organizer and speaker at public interest conferences in Bogota, Buenos Aires, Lima, Madrid, Mexico, New York, Santiago and São Paulo and elsewhere. He is also a frequent speaker on private equity, capital markets and emerging markets as well as public interest matters. Todd has co-authored several papers and articles, including most recently the October 2025 article “Private equity exits in Latin America: strategies for success in a dynamic market” published by Latin Lawyer.

Originally from the American South, Todd lived in Spain for ten of his first 20 years. Todd received his B.A., magna cum laude, in 1987 from Samford University in Birmingham, Alabama, where he was student body president, his Licence d’histoire in 1988 from the Université de Paris-Sorbonne (Paris IV), where he was a Rotary Scholar, and his J.D. in 1991 from Columbia University School of Law, where he was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar.

Todd is admitted to practice law in New York and authorized as a foreign legal consultant by the São Paulo Bar Association (Ordem dos Advogados do Brasil – São Paulo).
